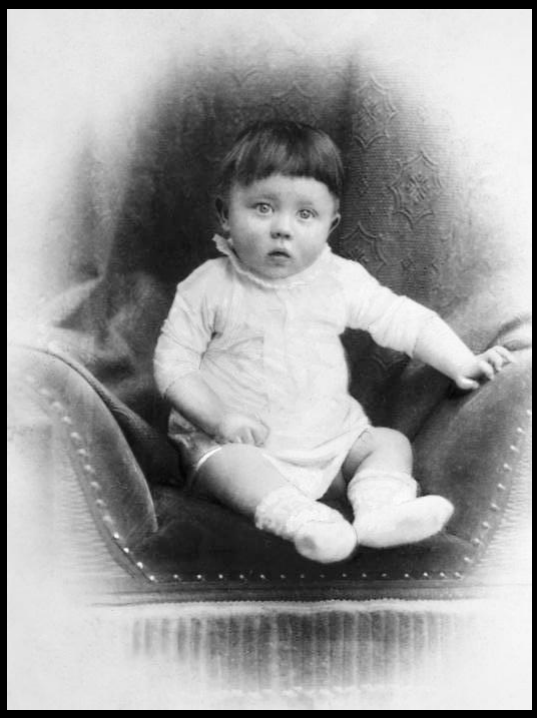
The American Adolf Hitler Donald Trump

How could it go so wrong?

History repeats itself. It usually only takes 70 to 100 years, and grandchildren and great-grandchildren are at risk of making almost the same mistakes as their older relatives. In Germany in 1923, Adolf Hitler and his criminal gang of Nazis tried to seize power in the Weimar Republic of Germany. It was historically repeated in the United States in 2021. Donald Trump single-handedly created a stir remotely and, like the Nazis, manipulated the sufficiently uncritical. The people certainly have a core of people who believe what a charismatic leader says. They have already made up their minds before he has even spoken. Adolf Hitler and Donald Trump came from completely different backgrounds. Adolf from a home where his father abused him every week and his mother comforted Adolf and convinced him that he was destined for something great in the future.



How could it go so wrong?

Adolf Hitler was a corporal during World War I, while Donald Trump and his father obtained a fake medical certificate stating that Donald Trump had a heel spur and the certificate exempted Donald from his obligation to serve in the Vietnam War. Father Frank and Donald already committed a criminal act there. The crimes are written off, but not the story that it was a crime. Father Frank trained Donald in the real estate business. In return, Donald received lessons in Racism. The real estate company disadvantaged people of color and was noticed for this.

As a child, Donald had shown early signs of his chronic sociopathy. At the age of five, he threw a rock at a sleeping baby and at eight, he punched a teacher in the eye with his fist.

Donald's schooling was fraught with problems and many delays. DT became his nickname.

Alois Hitler
Father

Adolf's father often abused Adolf. He sought comfort from his mother. She persuaded Adolf to endure because he was destined for something great in the world.

Klara Hitler
Mother

Klara Hitler brainwashed Adolf so much that he really believed that he was chosen for some great task in the future. There are witnesses from Adolf's school days. He was heard to say that he believed this almost as fact. His worldview later in life matches what he had been manipulated to believe about himself.

Adolf

Alois tried to browbeat his son into obedience, while Adolf did his best to be the opposite of whatever his father wanted. Alois would also beat his son, although his mother tried to protect him from regular beatings.

Hitler changed from a confident, outgoing, conscientious student to a morose, detached boy who constantly fought with his father and teachers. Paula Hitler recalled how Adolf was a teenage bully who would often slap her.

Adolf Hitler was beaten by his father every week and Adolf sought comfort from his mother.

She brainwashed Adolf with the mantra you are destined for something great in the future, you are chosen for something great.

The mother was right. Hitler is believed to have murdered about 17 million people.

Not on his own, but he ordered strategies that had that effect.

27,000 apartments in New York overall. Trump was investigated for profiteering by a U.S. Senate committee in 1954 and again by New York State in 1966. Donald Trump became the president of his father's real-estate business in 1971. Two years later, they were sued by the U.S. Justice Department's Civil Rights Division for racial discrimination against black people.
Fred and his wife, Mary Trump, provided over $1 billion (in 2018 currency) to their children overall, avoiding over $500 million in gift taxes. Fred transferred the ownership of most of his apartment buildings to his children, who several years later sold them for over 16 times their previously declared worth. In 1927, Trump was arrested at a Ku Klux Klan demonstration; there is no conclusive evidence that he supported the organization. From World War II onwards, to avoid associations with Nazism, Trump denied his German ancestry and also supported Jewish causes. Fred reputedly secured Donald a deferment from the Vietnam War by prioritizing maintenance for a tenant who, ostensibly in exchange, diagnosed Donald with bone spurs. Fred Trump paid his children each about $20,000 a year, equivalent to $265,000 a year in 2024. Trump was a millionaire at age eight by contemporary standards. Trump Was a Vicious Bully as a Child Who Threw Rocks at Babies. Dennis Burnham, who lived next door, was a toddler when his mother briefly put him in a playpen in their garden. Donald aged five or six, standing at his fence throwing rocks at the little boy.

Hitler came to power in 1933 and after a short time Germany was transformed into a dictatorship. In 1932 Hitler received 33.1% of the votes in a democratic election. But the SA troops had influenced the election with their threats, where they were seen in their brown uniforms.

Donald Trump won the 2014 election but received 2.8 million fewer votes than Hillary Clinton. The election was rigged with the help of Russia. Trump was already a Russian agent since 1987 by the name of Krasnov. Russia managed to get him elected.

Hitler learned to come to power through democratic elections and then he got power over the army and the police. He then invented a crisis, when he easily burned down the government building in Berlin and found a guilty communist. This required new laws that were invented and which meant that Germany's democracy was replaced with a dictatorship.

Under the United States Constitution, the House of Representatives has the sole power of impeachments while the Senate has the sole power to try impeachments (i.e., to acquit or convict); the validity of an impeachment trial is a political question that is nonjusticiable (i.e., is not reviewable by the courts). In the United States, impeachment is a remedial rather than penal process, intended to "effectively 'maintain constitutional government' by removing individuals unfit for office"; persons subject to impeachment and removal remain "liable and subject to Indictment, Trial, Judgment and Punishment, according to Law.

The Senate shall have the sole Power to try all Impeachments. When sitting for that Purpose, they shall be on Oath or Affirmation. An inconvenient lawyer (woman) previously employed at a prosecutor's office was dismissed without any particular reason. But this was not enough. The authorities apparently also had the same feeling, that it was difficult to find the reason for the dismissal. The authorities knew that the former employee in question was going to testify before senators, only Democrats showed up for the meeting. The woman in question said that before the testimony and in the evening at 8:00 p.m. she had received an e-mail saying that a threatening letter was on its way to her home, telling her not to testify as planned. The letter was supposed to be delivered by armed police to her home, only a younger daughter was home. How could it go so wrong?

The American separation of powers between Congress, the President and the Courts was created to prevent a person who wanted to introduce a dictatorship and looked after his own interests. This is also known from a letter from President George Washington. Since Donald Trump, through a number of irregular decisions and these clearly show plans to make himself a dictator, is already violating the constitution and that should be enough to impeach him. Otherwise, the constitution is written incorrectly, or those who sit in the Senate and House of Representatives are too cowardly. The representatives who do not try to prevent Donald Trump will have played the same role in history as those who did nothing to stop Adolf Hitler. So it must be that they think like Donald Trump or see other advantages in being close to a dictator. They may like power or their own economic advantages. You can bundle up the judgment about these cowards later in new history books. "These traitors to the American Constitution sat there helpless and just watched and let it happen. We now know that XXXXX (can be filled in later, that this many lives were lost) (who knows a third World War might be traced back to their inaction) lives were lost through their collective betrayal."

What can historians possibly write about the history of the United States during Donald Trump's time as President? There is already a lot to write, but it is quite obvious that he is trying to take more power than the Constitution is intended for.

Lee, a forensic psychiatrist, containing essays from 27 psychiatrists, psychologists, and other mental health professionals describing the "clear and present danger" that US President Donald Trump's mental health poses to the "nation and individual well being". A second edition updated and expanded the book with additional essays. Lee maintains that the book remains strictly a public service, and all royalties were donated to the public good to remove any conflict of interest.

The authors argue that Trump's mental health affects the mental health of the people of the United States and that he places the country at grave risk of involving it in a war and of undermining democracy itself due to his dangerous pathology.

The founder of Duty to Warn says 'Trump is the American Hitler, and immigrants are the new Jews'

Dementia is a syndrome associated with many neurodegenerative diseases, characterized by a general decline in cognitive abilities that affects a person's ability to perform everyday activities. This typically involves problems with memory, thinking, behavior, and motor control. Aside from memory impairment and a disruption in thought patterns, the most common symptoms of dementia include emotional problems, difficulties with language, and decreased motivation.

The symptoms may be described as occurring in a continuum over several stages. Dementia is a life-limiting condition, having a significant effect on the individual, their caregivers, and their social relationships in general. A diagnosis of dementia requires the observation of a change from a person's usual mental functioning and a greater cognitive decline than might be caused by the normal aging process. Several diseases and injuries to the brain, such as a stroke, can give rise to dementia. However, the most common cause is Alzheimer's disease, a neurodegenerative disorder. Dementia is a neurocognitive disorder with varying degrees of severity (mild to major) and many forms or subtypes.
Diagnosis of dementia is usually based on history of the illness and cognitive testing with imaging. Blood tests may be taken to rule out other possible causes that may be reversible, such as hypothyroidism (an underactive thyroid), and imaging can be used to help determine the dementia subtype and exclude other causes. When we're diagnosing dementia, what we need to see is a deterioration of someone's own baseline of functioning. What we see that a lot of people don't appreciate is that when Donald Trump was younger in the 1980s, he was actually quite articulate. He spoke in polished paragraphs; now he has difficulty even finishing a sentence. His thoughts were logical and related: now they're tangential. He goes off on these ramblings where he is confabulating things – weird things in which he'll talk about Venezuelans and mental hospitals, and then he'll talk about sharks and batteries or the late, great Hannibal Lector and Silence of the Lambs. And why is he talking about Hannibal Lector – a fictional character who was not great; he was a murderer, a serial killer. It makes sense in Trump's mind but these are really random associations. And there is an accelerating rate of decline.

Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders

Personality disorders are a class of mental disorders characterized by enduring and inflexible maladaptive patterns of behavior, cognition, and inner experience, exhibited across many contexts and deviating from those accepted by any culture. These patterns develop by early adulthood, and are associated with significant distress or impairment. Criteria for diagnosing personality disorders are listed in the sixth chapter of the International Classification of Diseases (ICD) and in the American Psychiatric Association's Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM).
There is no standard treatment for NPD. Its high comorbidity with other mental disorders influences treatment choice and outcomes. Psychotherapeutic treatments generally fall into two categories: psychoanalytic/psychodynamic and cognitive behavioral therapy, with growing support for integration of both in therapy. However, there is an almost complete lack of studies determining the effectiveness of treatments. One's subjective experience of the mental disorder, as well as their agreement to and level of engagement with treatment, are highly dependent on their motivation to change.

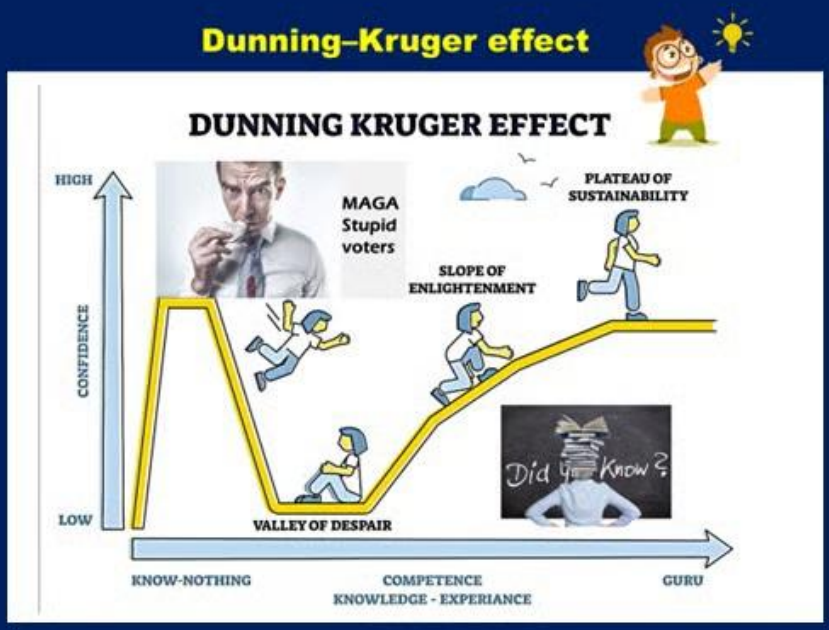
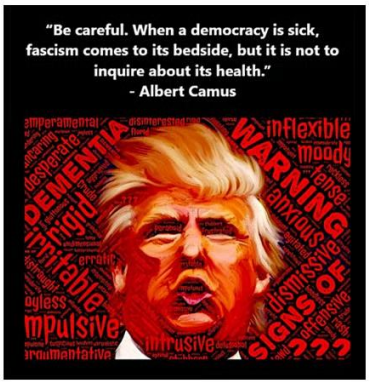
Dunning – Kruger effect



Signs and symptoms

"Individuals with narcissistic personality disorder may be grandiose or self-loathing, extraverted or socially isolated, captains of industry or unable to maintain steady employment, model citizens or prone to antisocial activities."



Grandiose, thick-skinned NPD patients show a sense of uniqueness or superiority, attitudes of entitlement, a belief that others envy their abilities or status, low empathy, social dominance, superficial charm, disdainfulness or snobbery, and an exploitative interpersonal style characterised by manipulation and selfishness.

Narcissus painting by Caravaggio, depicting Narcissus gazing upon the water after falling in love with his own reflection.

Narcissistic personality disorder (NPD) is a personality disorder characterized by a life-long pattern of exaggerated feelings of self-importance, an excessive need for admiration, and a diminished ability to empathize with other people's feelings. Narcissistic personality disorder is one of the sub-types of the broader category known as personality disorders.

Dunning–Kruger effect

The Dunning–Kruger effect is a cognitive bias in which people with limited competence in a particular domain overestimate their abilities. It was first described by David Dunning and Justin Kruger in 1999. Some researchers also include the opposite effect for high performers: their tendency to underestimate their skills. In popular culture, the Dunning–Kruger effect is often misunderstood as a claim about general overconfidence of people with low intelligence instead of specific overconfidence of people unskilled at a particular task.

I know everything! I don't need your advice!
I work on improving my preparations gradually and learn as much as I can as I go.
There are so many possible disasters...
This is more complicated than you might think.
I can't prepare for everything, it's just too much.

In September 1930, as a consequence of the Stennes revolt in Berlin, Hitler assumed supreme command of the SA as its new Oberster SA-Führer.
By the time Hitler assumed power in January 1933, SA membership had increased to approximately 2,000,000—twenty times as large as the number of troops and officers in the Reichswehr (German Army).
Storm Division' or 'Storm Troopers') was the original paramilitary organisation under Adolf Hitler and the Nazi Party of Germany. It played a significant role in Hitler's rise to power in the 1920s and early 1930s.
Its primary purposes were providing protection for Nazi rallies and assemblies, disrupting the meetings of opposing parties, fighting against the paramilitary units of the opposing parties.
The SA were colloquially called Brownshirts.

Voluntarily resigns	Forced to resign
Very low probability. People with megalomania and overconfidence don't think about it being an alternative.	Either the legal route, impeachment, or a coup d'état by military forces, or in the event of civil war. Medium to high risk

Death natural death or accident	Assassination and murder
High risk. He is at the age where the average age of death occurs. The risk of death by accident is elevated. Murder disguised as an accident exists.	High risk, an attempt has been made and the more politics shifts towards authoritarian rule, the more likely new assassination attempts are.

Men's toilet	Ladies' room
Federally funded schools in the US are no longer allowed to have restrooms and locker rooms reserved for a particular gender.	Donald Trump denies the existence of trans people as a group. There are 35 toilets in the White House.
